Casey City Council - Casey Fields criterium circuit

< All metro councils < Campaign for cycling

May 06

The new 2.2km criterium cycling circuit at Casey Fields in Cranbourne is open for riding.

It is being used for racing by veteran and club racers, such as Carnegie Caulfield and the Human Powered Vehicle group.

You are welcome to ride on it anytime outside the race bookings, or you can join one of the groups that use the circuit.

The City of Casey website says 'Part-funded by Sport and Recreation Victoria, the track is the first of its kind in Victoria and provides a fast-paced, action-packed training, competition and recreation facility.'

Jun 05. A new 2.2km criterium cycling circuit will be built at Casey Fields in Cranbourne. The track is expected to be completed by April 2006.

Casey Mayor, Neil Lucas, said that cycling groups were consulted about the design of the track to provide a fast-paced, action-packed training, competition and recreation facility.

There are over 1,500 members of local cycling clubs who will benefit, as well as cycling clubs from around the state.
